During the 2008 Day One semester, the Sass x7 Action Team completed 190 service hours, logged 170 site visits, and traveled 466 miles for Ward Stewart Elementary. The purpose of their work was, “to recognize and celebrate the accomplishments of students at Ward-Stewart Elementary who are making positive choices and academic achievements.” Sass x7 created a tutoring program called, Locomotive Learning, which facilitates good academic behavior and positive choices. They created posters to inform people about the tutoring program and its rewards. Throughout the semester, during Locomotive Learning, the Sass x7 worked with 40 students and tutored them in many different subjects. They also handed out prizes to the students to encourage them to study and recognized their hard work. At the end of the semester the Sass x7 Action Team encouraged an increase in grades, promoted good behavior, and met their goals for Locomotive Learning.
